St Lawrence Reading Scripture

1 and 2 Maccabees

For many of us, the books of Maccabees are probably some of the least familiar in all of scripture. These books tell the stories of the Maccabean Revolt, the period less than two centuries before Jesus' birth, in which the Jewish People gained their independence and re-founded an independent, Jewish Kingdom. If you are familiar with these books, you likely recognize them as containing the story of Hanukkah, when the Jews restored the temple to the worship of God.

But the reason it is good to read these books in November is because it is one of the only places in scripture where we are explicitly encouraged to pray for the dead. 2 Maccabees 12:39-45 shows Judas Maccabeus encouraging his people to pray for those who died in sin, that they might find atonement and forgiveness.

As we start this month of November with these most important celebrations of All Saints Day and All Souls Day, the books of 1 and 2 Maccabees can be an encouragement to seek God's kingdom, to hold on to hope even when things seem bleak, and to remember that even the dead need prayer.

Do You Believe Mental Health Matters in the Body of Christ?

Do you believe that mental health is as important as physical health in the Body of Christ? Do you attend Mass regularly—at least once a month?
If so, you may be eligible to participate in an important mental health study being conducted with Fr. Steve Roberts and his colleagues. Your participation can help us better understand mental health experiences within our faith communities and strengthen the Church's ability to respond with compassion, understanding, and support.
If you are available and willing to help with this important effort, please contact Dr. Melinda Moore by email at melinda.moore@eku.edu or by phone at (859) 457-1210. If you call, please leave a voicemail with your name and telephone number.

Your willingness to participate is deeply appreciated. Thank you for helping us learn more about how we can care for the mental health and spiritual well-being of one another within the Body of Christ.
